NOTE: The sources listed in this directory sell to computer distributors and resellers only. They will not sell to end consumers. A valid business license and sales tax permit is usually required to set up an account with them.

Tips For Using This Directory

- Every effort has been made to provide the most accurate links possible for the web site listings. However, if a link does not work try typing in just the domain part of the link. Ex. www.uniquepc.biz
- The best way to type a link in your web browser is to copy and paste it in the browser search box.
- Most of the wholesale sources listed also offer custom system builder services. This should be listed under their "Products" section or their "Services" section of the web site.
- Most of the sources listed have locations all around the world and several in the United States and Canada. Check for a location near you using the "Contact" link.
- For manufacturers, you can find a local distributor for them by going to their "Where to buy" link or a link for "Resellers".
- For the wholesalers listed, look for a link for "Resellers" or "Where to Buy" to get information on becoming an authorized reseller to gain access to their web sites with pricing and ordering capabilities.
- Almost all of the sources listed require you to have a legitimate business license and sales tax permit. The sources listed only sell to computer distributors and resellers (retailers) and not to end users.
- Compare prices from a few sources before placing your first order.
- When selecting a wholesale source, don't forget to consider the shipping costs, turnaround time and delivery methods used by the different sources listed.

Best of luck in your future business endeavors,

Greg Evans

How To Use This Directory

Thank you for purchasing this directory. In order to help you in your search for a quality distributor of pc case modification parts, I have included a few tips on using this directory.

- The distributors listed are the actual manufacturer of the products or are factory authorized to distribute the products.
- In most cases you can purchase directly from the manufacturer.
- The distributors listed ONLY sell to computer resellers, not end use consumers.
- If you want to purchase in quantities of one, you will need to contact the distributor for a list of resellers in your area or online.
- None of the distributors listed are affiliated with Unique PC in any way.
- Before contacting a distributor, it is best to have an idea of when you would be making your first purchase, your monthly and yearly estimated sales and starting inventory requirements.
- It is a good idea to have a web site and corporate email before contacting the distributors if you are selling online.
- Have your business information ready such as your sales tax number, and business license certificate before contacting the distributors.
- If you email a distributor, use simple English. A lot of these distributors are located all around the world, so to make communication easier keep your English simple and easy to understand.
- When looking for reseller sign up information on a vendors web site, look for links labelled “Resellers”, “Where To Buy”, or under their “Contact” information.
- When choosing a distributor consider their location and shipping methods used. Shipping fees can account for a large portion of the cost.

I hope this information will help you and I wish you the best of success in all your business ventures,

Greg Evans
